How to Play the Clean Your Room and Be Silly Game TM

One Player Version: Pull up the game board on your screen or print it out. If you print it out, you can place the board on a table or floor.

If you use the screen close your eyes and use your finger or computer mouse to land on a random square on the game board.

If you print it out, you can roll a small object like a stone or coin. You must complete whatever task is in the square you land on.

As an alternative, you can print out one extra game board and cut the squares out. You can put the squares in a bowl, clothes your eyes, and choose one.

Each time you complete a square, put something in it like an X or a coin so you know that it's done. When you complete ten squares you have won the game.

Two-Player Cooperative Version: Set a timer for 45 minutes. Use the same method described in the One-Player version to select squares on your gameboard. However, in the Two-Player Cooperative Version, you will work with a teammate, so you each do a task in your own room or space after you land in a box on the board.

You will also use two game boards - one for each player.

Each time you complete a square, put something in it like an X or coin so you know that it's done. When you complete 20 squares together in under 45 minutes (10 on each card), you beat the game.

Two-Player Competitive Version

Use the same method described in the One-Player version to select squares on your gameboard.

You will also use two game boards, one for each player.

Each time you complete a square, put something in it like an X or coin so you know that it's done. The first player to complete ten squares on their gameboard is the winner.

You can print game boards out or put them side by side on your screen.
